PICTURE DEALER CAUGHT

William Harris is Located in Terre Haute and Brought to This City—Pleads Not Guilty to Charge of Assault and Battery and Case is Set for Tomorrow.

ATTACKS AMO WOMAN, TOO

Traced to Terre Haute by a local man, located and arrested by Chief of Police Jones of that city, returned to Greencastle by night officer Williamson and arraigned before Mayor Jas. McD. Hays, charged with assault and battery, William Harris, the impolite picture man, who slapped Mrs. Maggie Hoffman yesterday, now lays in the Putnam County jail, awaiting his trial which is set for hearing at two o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

Harris, who represents some picture firm, became very angry yesterday afternoon when Mrs. Maggie Hoffman refused to accept the work which she claimed was not up to the contract conditions, and lost self-control far enough to slap her several times. The police were notified at once but as the man had skipped out, they could do nothing.

About two hours later, Lee Hollingsworth, of Amo, arrived in town asking for a man who answered Harris' description. Thus it was discovered that Harris had done the same trick at Amo just before he came here. He had attacked and badly beaten, it is claimed, Mr. Hollingsworth's mother, who is over fifty years old, and escaped before the son could get him. Hollingsworth and the police got together immediately and traced the picture-faker to Terre Haute and then Marshal Reeves sent the Amo man to Chief Jones of Terre Haute, asking them to arrest Harris and hold him until an officer could arrive. With the aid of Hollingsworth, the wanted man was located at about nine o'clock and brought to this city at mid-night by night officer Williamson.

Harris pleaded not guilty to the charge of assault and battery before the Mayor this morning and his trial was set for hearing tomorrow afternoon at two o'clock. The Amo officers have also put in a claim for the prisoner as soon as the Greencastle police are through with him. So Harris will probably get his just dues for attacking unprotected women.

MISS GARDNER HONORED

Friends Give Surprise Party as Celebration of Her Return From Memphis, Tennessee.

WAS A MASQUERADE AFFAIR

Miss Nellie Gardner, who has lately returned from a visit in Memphis, Tenn., was pleasantly surprised by her friends in the S. C. Club last night, who wished to show their joy over her being at home again. The party of young women unexpectedly gathered at the Gardner home on South Indiana Street, early last evening all masked and otherwise decorated. The evening was spent in telling fortunes and the playing of games, after which light refreshments were served.

FUNERAL TO BE IN MONROE

Remains of Mrs. Barbara Lucas, Mother of Ferd Lucas of This City Are Taken to Bloomington Where Burial Services Will be Held Tomorrow.

AGED MOTHER SURVIVE DECEASED

The remains of Mrs. Barbara Lucas, who died in the Deaconess Hospital at Indianapolis yesterday noon, were taken to Bloomington late this afternoon and thence transferred to the home at Clear Creek, five miles south of Bloomington where the funeral will be held tomorrow. Mrs. Lucas had been suffering from liver trouble for some time and finally consented to undergo an operation for gall stones. The operation was performed Monday. At first everything pointed to the speedy recovery of the patient and Ferd Lucas, her son, returned to this city thinking that all was well but complications arose Tuesday night. Early Wednesday morning the physicians phoned for Mr. Lucas to come on the first car as there was no hope for the recovery of his mother. She died at 12:45 o'clock Wednesday afternoon.

The deceased was a well known resident of Monroe County and was 65 years old. Three children survive—Ferd Lucas, of Greencastle, Marcellus Lucas, of Clear Creek, and Elmer Lucas of Mt. Ebal.

Besides the aged mother, Mrs. Susan Woodward, one brother and three sisters mourn her death—Joseph S. Woodward of this city, Mrs. James Borland, Mrs. George Deckard and Mrs. Mary Palmer, all residents of Monroe County.

BIGGER COMPANY DISOLVED

Greencastle's New Gents' Furnishing Store is Now in Hands of Former Junior Partner, F. A. Hays, An Old Greencastle Merchant.

BIGGER'S PLANS ARE UNSETTLED

The Bigger Tailoring Company is dissolved by mutual agreement of the two partners, John T. Bigger and F. A. Hays the latter taking the business in his own name. This change was made some time last week but was kept quiet until this week. Mr. Bigger desired to have his future plans in hand before anything was given out.

The reason for the dissolving of the partnership is not stated by the proprietors, but it is said that the change is the result of disagreement concerning the management of the business. Mr. Bigger withdrew from the firm leaving everything in the hands of his father-in-law, F. A. Hays. The young man has not definitely decided what he will do but says that he will probably start a new business in this city.

"The Work of the Spirit."

There was a large attendance at the Christian church last evening. The revival at this church is reaching an ever widening circle. There has been from evening to evening a deepening sense of need. One of the most interesting features of the meeting is the consecration services held between 7:30 and 8 o'clock. The time is spent in prayer and quoting the scriptures. All christian people are invited to make this their own meeting. The pastor of the church is giving special talks on the above subject. The position is taken that wherever the light of God's word is taken there the Spirit will engage in all his gracious work. That where the Bible is not known and the gospel is not preached, the Spirit of God does not go on his mission of reproving, rebuking, convicting and correcting men. If He did, we would fold our arms and trust God to do the work of saving the world through his Spirit, but God does not relieve men of their individual and personal responsibility. This is not a dispensation of spooks or ghosts, or disembodied spirits. God requires that we, men and women, go preach the gospel to "every creature" and when we carry the gospel message to a benighted land then and not till then will the Holy Spirit do his mighty work in the lives and hearts of men. This lays awful responsibility upon all men, but it also confers great honor upon all men. It makes men in their labor and prayers essential to the salvation of the world. Do men and women ordinarily feel this awful responsibility? Is it not true that there are hundreds of men and women in our Greencastle churches who are living all unconscious of the fact that the spirit makes them links in the chain whereby God is drawing the world unto himself? These same church members will sing, "Will there be any stars in my crown?" as if they thought there would be. No, brother, yours is no crown at all. Subject tonight, "What Shall I do to be Saved?"

Following this game, the Madison team played a quintet from Lena, and their luck changed. Lena took the long end of the score in the first half and it was only through the playing of Richards, DePauw's star guard who was put in play on account of the absence of their regular guard, that Madison brought the score up to 20 to 21. Joseph Preston refereed the latter game.

WILL BE PLACED IN NEW PARK

Representative Voor of Terre Haute yesterday, by consent of the House, introduced a bill providing for an appropriation of $10,000 for the erection of a monument in Terre Haute to the late Senator Daniel W. Voorhees. The bill provides for a commission of three, to be appointed by the Governor, to have charge of the erection of the monument.

This will be raised if the bill is passed, in the new Terre Haute park to be opened this spring and will be in memory of Daniel W. Voorhees, the father of James Paxton Voorhees of this city. It is thought in Indianapolis that this bill will pass with out doubt.

COUNTRY TEAMS PLAY WELL

Madison Township Quintet Beats the Putnamville Basketball Team and Then Loses to the Lena Independents Last Night.

E. WRIGHT OF PUTNAMVILLE, STAR

In spite of the fact that they have had no chance for good practice, the basketball teams which played at the Banner rink last night, showed exceedingly good team work and remarkable ability in goal tossing. In the first game the Putnamville five lost to the Madison township quintet by a large score. Putnamville was outclassed from the beginning but put up a good game in spite of this handicap. Guy Wright, brother of Ernest Wright of this city, put up the best game for the Putnamvilleites, while Cleve Thomas of the Madison team showed himself to be the star of the evening.

Following this game, the Madison team played a quintet from Lena, and their luck changed. Lena took the long end of the score in the first half and it was only through the playing of Richards, DePauw's star guard who was put in play on account of the absence of their regular guard, that Madison brought the score up to 20 to 21. ## THE BILL IS TO BE KILLED

The Fraternity House Tax Bill Introduced by Putnam County Representative Proves Very Unpopular—James Gerrard, "Whip" of the House Says "No."

IT DIES WITH THE COMMITTEE

It is practically assured that the Hostetter bill, which if passed would have included all fraternity houses in taxable property, will not get out of the committee room.

In an interview with an alumnus of DePauw in Indianapolis yesterday Representative James Gerrard, "Whip" of the House, said that the bill would not be taken before the legislators for the third reading.

The bill was introduced by David B. Hostetter, who represents Putnam County, and in effect would be a repeal of the Rulick bill, which was passed several years ago.

Were you at the opera house moving picture show last night? If not you missed an awful good show. Every body was satisfied, and tonight you will miss another good one, if you fail to attend. Read the program for Saturday night's entertainment published in this issue, and then make your arrangements to go early, if you want a good seat.

SEES AND MATHEMATICS

Winged Workers Skilled in Practical Use of Numbers.

The construction of geometrically perfect cells is not the only mathematical operation performed by bees, according to American Beekeepers, who read an interesting paper on the subject before the Paris Academy of Science. The Beekeeping Association reports that the bees construct the following cells:

"Not only is the construction of the cells carried on by mathematical rules, but many other operations of the insects show, for instance, the collecting of the maximum amount of honey in the minimum time, and the division of the workers among the plants proportionately to the number of plants of the same species. In the hive the number of bees engaged in ventilation is almost rigorously proportional to the daily increase of weight of honey, etc. Parts of this order relate to mathematical proportions, while those having to do with cell building relate to the geometrical ratios."

M. B. Smith is of the opinion, however, in spite of this show of apparent intelligence on the part of the bees, that all their movements, without exception, are of the nature of reflexes, that is, performed without conscious action, just as we close our eyes instinctively when a motion is made toward them.

Worse Than Whisky.

Tuesday's results in the contest to prohibit the sale of intoxicants will sweep away any doubt as to the wisdom of retaining the county option law in Indiana.

The man who drinks intoxicating liquors to excess can seldom conceal the habit from the public for any length of time. The signs develop early and are unmistakable.

The drug habit is much less spectacular in its effects than the whisky evil. But the time comes when the habit can no longer be concealed. For the sake of its indulgence everything gives way; self-respect, love of home and family, reputation, business property—all are sacrificed, and finally mind and body pass into hopeless wreck. The disintegration of the moral nature of the victim is much more speedy and complete than in case of the users of whisky, thus making an appeal to their better qualities almost useless.

The drug habit, is one that is increasing to an alarming degree in all classes of society and the checking of the evil is one of the coming social problems. None more difficult have ever been presented to reformers; the cure of the habit being almost an impossibility when it is once well established.

The American people, medicine mad, think they can violate Nature's laws with impunity and yet escape the penalty that naturally follows in the wake of drugs. Who shall say death comes naturally now-a-days when the deadliest poisons are hourly fed, soaked and injected into depleted, distressed humanity?

Did it ever occur to you that Nature revolts against drugs, while she welcomes aid that wisely comes from her hand-maid—Osteopathy? She has her own best mode of doing each thing when not hampered and obstructed by dosage, and she best works a cure when her forces are set free by skillful osteopaths.

There is no record of death resulting from over-doses of osteopathy, neither do the patients contract the opium, morphine, chloral, cocaine or whisky habit. The most bed-ridden people are the most sickly. Nature requires no drugs for the constructive changes of cell life that take place in the cure of every disease.

Health never comes from toxic drugs, or intoxicating drinks; but Nature, assisted by her best helper—genuine osteopathy, has it for you if you will avail yourself of treatment here at home under the most favorable circumstances at 117 South Jackson Street, Tuesdays and Fridays.

The time will come when the term prohibition will be understood to mean prevention of the sale of morphine, cocaine and similar drugs, as well as of alcoholic beverages. And osteopathy will prove the most available and effectual means of combating this great evil. Instead of giving drugs, the Osteopath uses as healing agents the bodily fluids and forces required to build from simple food every part of the body. Hence it is seen that the Spaulding Osteopaths aid Nature to health, not by pouring drugs into sick stomachs, but by fixing what is wrong which is sure as it is safe.

By virtue of Nature's own treatment and by following the advice of Nature's doctors who discard both liquor and drugs, the human family will indeed live strongly and comfortably to a ripe old age.

DEPAUW NEWS

NORMAL HERE ON FRIDAY TO MAKE INVESTIGATION

GAME SCHEDULED BETWEEN METHODISTS AND TERRE HAUTE TEAM.

THEIR TEAM SAID TO BE STRONG

DePauw meets the Terre Haute State Normal basketball team here Friday night.

Owing to our unpleasant relations with the State Normal last year, local fans have been particularly anxious for the two teams to clash again this season. Because of the partiality of referee Kissner, DePauw lost a game last season to the Normal on a Terre Haute floor. The referee's decisions throughout the game were so obviously unfair, that the Methodists left the floor before the game was finished thus forfeiting the result of the contest to the State Normal.

The Normalites have been putting up a first class game of basketball this season. They spring a decided surprise on Franklin last Friday night, defeating them by exactly the same number of points that DePauw did. The same week they also beat Rose Poly in to a close score, allowing the engineer's the victory by the small margin of three points. The game Friday night is expected to be a good one.

MISS MARJORIE MELCHER MAKE ON BIBLE STUDY

Yesterday's Young Women's Christian Association Meeting of Special Interest.

Miss Marjorie Melcher, of Indianapolis, State Secretary of the Young Women's Christian Association, conducted a Bible study meeting yesterday afternoon in Plato Hall.

Miss Ethel Cutler, a national secretary gave a talk on "Is it worth while for a college girl to study her Bible?"

"No girl," said Miss Cutler, "comes to college who does not long to be a better woman and to fill her place in the world better. To do this she must study and know her Bible." The speaker placed great emphasis on the wide difference between studying and merely reading the Bible.

Bible study enrollment cards were passed around and a number of additions made to the classes. Miss Parker ended the program with a song. Miss Cutler will probably conduct chapel this morning.

STUDENT COUNCIL IS ON THE TRAIL OF "OFFICIAL ADVERTISERS."

MEETING WAS HELD LAST NIGHT

At a meeting of the student council held last night in Dr. Seaman's recitation room a committee was appointed to investigate the illegitimate advertising which has been carried by students recently. "Official" score cards and advertising of like nature have been condemned by the council, this being done to protect the business men of Greencastle.

Three publications alone have been declared official by the council: The Mirage, the Y. M. C. A. Handbook, and The DePauw Daily. Hereafter, both in fairness to students and merchants, all persons soliciting advertisements for true college enterprises will be provided with a permit signed by the vice-president of the university and the president of the student council.

A committee was appointed to consult with the association of "D" men concerning the selection of yell leaders for next year, and another committee was instructed to write numerous other colleges for information relating to the organization of a college band.

DR. GOBIN SPOKE

Delivered Address Before Young Men in Last Night's Meeting.

At the Young Men's Christian Association meeting Wednesday evening Doctor Gobin spoke on "The Importance of Right Belief."

"Christ indicated his interest in the welfare of his disciples by appealing to them to believe in him, as he would give them the right principles of life."

On this truth the speaker based many of his arguments. He declared that belief was influenced largely by the will. As in the modern methods of building up the body by exerting the will, so may the moral nature be built up in the same way.

Dr. Gobin cited the cases of the self made codes of Stevenson and Jefferson to illustrate his point.

"These incidents," said he in conclusion, "show that when men seek the right things for faith nothing suits them so well as the teachings of the Bible."

INDEPENDENTS LOSE

Winona Tech. Takes Game by a 41 to 25 Score.

DePauw's Independent team lost a game last night to the Winona Technical Institute at Indianapolis, by a score of 41 to 25.

The game was very rough. The Independents were at considerable disadvantage, being forced to play in a low-ceilinged room where long passes or long shots for baskets were almost impossible.

Hawk, Captain of the Winona team was the star of the game, catching 11 of the 17 field goals chalked up for his team. McGrew showed up well for the Independents, getting five field goals. Weaver threw 7 out of a possible 13 foul throws.

Winona will probably be given a return game here. The lineup was as follows:

Winona DePauw
Hawk ..... F ..... Weaver
Haxworth ..... F ..... McGrew
Tulford ..... C ..... Sheek, Dewey
Welch ..... G ..... Mercer
Pierson, Moony, G ..... Blumberg

Summary:
Field Goals—Winona: Hawk, 11; Haxworth, 1; Tulford, 3; Pierson, 2; DePauw: McGrew, 5; Mercer, 2; Sheek; Weaver.
Goals from foul—Haxworth, 6; Hawk; Pierson; Weaver, 7.

ARRANGE FOR CONTEST

LARGE ATTENDANCE EXPECTED AT ORATORICAL IN INDIANAPOLIS.

EXCURSION RATES ARE SECURED

Practically all arrangements have been made for the State Oratorical contest which will be held Friday, February 12, in Tomlinson Hall in Indianapolis. Almost all the speeches have been returned from the judges on manuscript so that there can be no delay in determining the winners.

The judges who have graded the orations are: President Charles F. Thawing of Western Reserve University, Professor Felix E. Shelby and Professor Frederick E. Bolton of the University of Iowa. The judges on delivery are Professor George McNight, University of Ohio, Evans Woodlen and Samuel D. Miller both of Indianapolis. These men are all experienced along this line and are sure to render a fair decision. Dr. Joshua Stanford of Meridian Street Methodist church will deliver the invocation.

The management has let the contract for transportation to the inter-urban company and although it is not certain how many students will attend a rate of seventy-five cents for the round trip has been made.

No little interest is being manifested all over the state as to the outcome of the contest. From the frequent reports that are being received it is estimated that a larger crowd than ever will attend the affair. It is up to DePauw to furnish a much larger contingent even than last year for the event. But one school will be represented by the same person who spoke last year. Walter Lynn will speak the second time for Wabash.

The reservations for DePauw have been made and the admission price of fifty cents has been announced. Tickets have been put on sale at Langdon's. There are but a limited number of them going to each school making it necessary for those who would make certain of securing a place to get their tickets at once.

HE EARNS HIS WAY

Tien Tuang is One of Many Busy Students.

Among the students who are working their way through this college there is one who certainly allows no grass to grow under his feet.

This is Tien Min Huang, of Hing-hua, China. He is a young man thousands of miles from home and friends, who is entirely dependent on his own efforts for a livelihood.

Whenever the opportunity offers he pauses long enough in his relentless pursuit of knowledge to go over to Indianapolis and separate the people of that city from some of their loose change. He goes from house to house selling Chinese statuary, fancy work and curios. Into this work he throws the same intensity that he does into his study.

Recently Tien Huang returned from one of these trips very much better off from a pecuniary standpoint. When asked if his goods did not sell "like hot cakes," he smiled and replied that those were the words.

THE SECRET FOOTSTOOL.

A "non-burglar proof safe," my brother Ted laughingly called it. It was an iron box padded and covered with chintz to match our sofa and looked exactly like a footstool. In it he kept the jewelry he was mending, bracelets, watches and what not. Sometimes it contained many things of value. A footstool he argued, would be the last place in the world a thief would think of looking into for booty, and so far we had been lucky in not having received a visit from a burglar.

It was only after Ted left me alone that day that I felt uneasy, perhaps because our "safe" contained some very valuable bracelets that he had brought home from the shop to mend.

Presently I heard a step which I thought might be the landlady's.

"Perhaps Mrs. Brown has returned," was the thought in my mind as I sat gazing at the door; but then I turned cold with fear, for the handle was turned softly and a strange man looked in—a young man with a pallid, greasy, leering face, ornamented by a thick-looking twist of hair on each side, while a limp cap of semi-military cut was struck rakishly on the side of his head. I noticed these details mechanically as I sat petrified with surprise and fright, and I also noticed that his long dirty neck without tie or collar, a shabby frock coat being buttoned up to his chin, and that his dirtier hands sported more than one ring.

This individual, after darting one swift glance around the room, slipped in and locked the door, saying:—"Slick! Popsy-wopsy don't be frightened! I'm not going to hurt you—not a bit of it! But you see—Stop that!" he growled, for, as he approached me, I recovered myself and gave a good loud scream.

Quick as thought he had his hand over my mouth—holding my chin and nose in such a manner that I was nearly suffocated; then he gave me a shake, saying:—"If you do that again, I'll pay you out; you little fool! There—she is going to be nice and quiet now, ain't she? A picture of good behavior I call her!"

Talking thus, he gagged me dexterously with some of my work—which however was pleasanter than his hand—ugh, that grimy hand—on my mouth, and then, producing some cord from his pocket, in a minute or two I was bound hand and foot in my chair.

"Look here, dear; if I loosen this cloth a bit, and you take breath, will you speak to me nicely? Only don't scream again; it makes me quite nervous to hear you scream, and can do you no good." How well I knew that, in a back room in a quiet street!

"There—ain't it much more comfortable? Tell me now, popsy—your brother's got some vallybles here, ain't he?"

I shook my head.

"Oh, but he has; so you needn't jog your noodle like that! Better tell me where he's put them. It will save lots of time, and be more pleasant for you."

But I only shook my head the more.

"Did you ever sitch stubbornness?" muttered the fellow, tugging up my mouth again. "I am afeared I shall have to make you speak directly. But I never like to be unkind to the ladies—unless they drive me to it—oh, never!"

Saying this, he began an examination of the apartment, proceeding in what, as I suppose, would be described by a professional as the "best style"; any way, his movements were characterized by extraordinary celerity. Within a few minutes he had gone to the bottom of every drawer and box in the room, and also turned out the sofa bedstead where Ted slept at night. A pretty litter he made of it all! But he had not yet discovered the secret of my footstool.

Can any one imagine what I endured as I sat there, helpless, the cold perspiration of fear on my forehead, while I asked myself, "What will the fellow do next?"

Once he turned round while proceeding with his search and, looking at me, said:—"going to faint are you? Oh, don't faint, for I shall want you to talk to me a bit! I'll open the window and give you some fresh air."

He went to the window—which dear Ted had cautioned me not to touch in the morning—unfastened the catch and would have let down the upper part, but he was saved the trouble, for the cord being broken, down came the window, catching his fingers between the upper and middle frames. The pain and shock must have been dreadful, the window frame being a very heavy one. He howled and kicked, but all in vain. There he stood, with both hands caught in as nice a trap as could have been devised for an evildoer. Then he glanced up at me, and the sight of me, "picture of good behavior" that I was, must have filled his soul with remorse, since through his own act I was rendered powerless to assist him in any way.

He whined, however:—"Can't you help me?"

As it was impossible for me willingly to look on while a fellow creature suffered such anguish as I knew he must be enduring, I used every effort to get free, but vainly. He had tied me too firmly for that. He took to kicking again, and began to swear horribly. May I never again hear such language as I was forced to listen to that afternoon! His hands soon swelled, and I saw some drops of blood trickle slowly down the panes the rings he wore on his dirty fingers having been forced into the flesh. The piercing air which rushed fiercely in through the wide aperture must have greatly aggravated his suffering. I know I was nearly frozen. And all this time the American clock on the mantelpiece kept ticking off the moments tranquilly, as though to assure me that time could not be hurried into a quicker pace by any consideration of human distress.

Imagine what two hours in such a situation meant for both of us! Two hours! I think the poor wretch at the window fainted; but the horrible dragging of his body on his poor maimed hands roused him directly. Trembling with cold and commiseration, I sat watching him, the tears rolling down his cheeks. Oh, why had I refused Ted's kind proposal to send Cousin Milly to me? Why had I been so captious about her dear little baby? Better a room full of babies, all doing their worst than—But here I swooned and fell, chair and all, on the rug before the cold grate, the fire having died out long since.

Just on the hour of three I became conscious of a dull thud below which I knew to be a knock on the street door. I lay listening, but wondering vaguely what would happen next rather than take any interest in things of this life, from which I seemed in a manner to have floated away.

After an interval I heard steps plodding up the stairs, and a loud, cheery voice, which I recognized as that of our old friend, Mr. Joy, the carpenter, calling out:—

"Hillo! Anybody at home?"

Coming to our room door, he knocked, then turned the handle, but of course found it locked. Being unable to speak, I tried to groan, and made some inarticulate noises; but I could hardly hope the old man heard them, as he was somewhat deaf. As for my companion in misfortune, one would suppose he would gladly have hailed a prison as an escape from such a plight as he was in; and no doubt he would, only he had no choice at that moment, having gone off again in a swoon.

I heard the carpenter go down stairs and hopes of relief died away in my breast. Oh, Joy, Joy, why did you come to mock me thus? Two more hours, probably, before Ted would come home! Shall I be alive by then? My bound and aching limbs were on the rack of pain; I lay and sobbed miserably. But hark! A shout from the back garden!

"What the dickens is all this?"

Again I heard the voice of Joy.

It appeared that the carpenter, on trying our room door, and finding it fastened concluded we were all out, but went round to the back of the house to "take a look at that three window" which my brother had sent him to mend—of course not expecting to find it converted into a man trap. He had noticed, while knocking at the street door, that the parlor window was unfastened, and thinking it unsafe, especially as Mrs. Brown was out, he had used his privilege as our old friend of hers to get through and fasten it before coming upstairs. No doubt the thief had entered the house by that way.

It was not long before help came, and the door was broken open, when our misery was ended. I dare say, since prisons were first built, there never was a culprit who walked into jail more meekly than did the one who had intended to rob my brother.

They say there the poor fellow's hands will never be right again, amputation may be necessary as erysipelas is setting in. Well, all I can say is, I freely forgive him for the suffering mental and bodily, he caused me.

I was in bed for a fortnight, but eventually got all right again. Dear Ted says I am a brick, but that may be his partiality. Anyhow, my footstool proved to be a very effective safe. To this hour no one knows it but you, Ted and myself.

Women as Money-Makers.

It has been estimated that 31 per cent of the single women in this country are engaged in money-making occupations, as well as 32 per cent of the widowed and 55 per cent of the women who have been separated from their husbands. When it comes to married women, it is stated that only 6 per cent are engaged in money-making.

This is taken to mean that women in the homes they have chosen for themselves are for the most part contented with domestic interests. As for the others, their mingling with men in the life of business seems to suggest many problems in future political economy. Perhaps, as has been suggested, it means that part of a man's salary is being earned by the women of his family, and the wage earning rate will be adjusted accordingly. Meanwhile it seems that women are coming to be competitors with men more in the light of comparative ability than of a willingness to accept less money for equal work. Hence the advantage, if it exists, is on a fair ground. In any event, the matter is still unsettled.

In a Pennsylvania town where the Friends abound a prim old Quaker spinster one day attended the marriage of her grandnephew, a young person who had in the course of his twenty-one years received much-needed discipline at her hands.

The old lady was at her best on this festive occasion, and at a pause in the wedding breakfast her young relative looked over at her with a beguiling smile.

"Tell us why thee never married, Aunt Patience?" he said teasingly.

"That is soon told, William," said the old Quakeress, calmly. "It was because I was not as easy pleased as thy wife was."—Youth's Companion.

THE KING OF DIAMONDS HAS LICENSE TAKEN AWAY.
Alleged Bogus Gem Man Rails at Newspapers.

BURLINGTON, IA., Nov. 14.—For some time past newspapers in Iowa cities have been reporting the operations of a man who they called "The King of Diamonds." It appears that there was nothing criminal in his operations, which consisted in selling "phony" diamonds, but his methods of procedure were not exactly according to the rules. He usually drops into a jobbing house and tells of meeting such and such a representative of the house on the road and selling him a diamond to be delivered at the store. He explains that the diamond is only an imitation, and offers to sell any lady else around the place the same thing. This he works up on interest and usually succeeds in selling some of his glassware. Mr. Jack of Diamonds dropped into City Auditor Norton's office one morning and secured a license to sell his wares. He had only been out a short time, however, until Chief of Police Hitz learned of him. Calling in the peddler, he relieved him of his license and gave him back the money he had paid for it. As the man had committed no crime he was released. He was bitter against the newspapers for injuring his business.

If you want to wear a simulation diamond, to the ordinary observer almost like unto a gem of the purest serenity, a fitting substitute for the genuine; or if you want to make money, don't wait—ACT TODAY, as this advertisement may not appear, nor this unusual and extraordinary opportunity occur again. Wages has grown so scarce in the rural districts of the county around Columbus that some of the farmers are helping family members to the city and having the work done at local industries. There has been little rainfall in the county, and old residents say they never saw the ground as dry as it is now. One man who brought a washing in from the country yesterday said he only had a little water in his cistern on his farm, and he has to save that for his live stock.—Indianapolis News.

The McKinley Moose.

During President McKinley's administration a party of government employees were establishing telegraphic communication from Valdez, Alaska, to points inland. Owing to the remoteness of the new, untamed country supplies were hard to obtain, and the party, wisely or unwisely, conceived the idea of transporting an ordinary milk cow, which was to accompany them en route. About every 25 or 30 miles there was a station, and during the progress of the work the cow traveled with the men up and down the line.

The Siwash Indians had never seen such an extraordinary creature, the nearest approach to it being their native cowmoose. They gathered from far and near, and asked all manner of questions in regard to this strange and wonderful animal. "Where you come from? Who your chief?" were the first questions.

"McKinley is our chief," was the answer.

The Indians, conceiving that McKinley owned all things, departed to tell their brothers and sisters and grandmothers, who in turn came to see the remarkable cow—the "McKinley moose" they named it. The white man took it up, so the name has come to stay, and a cow is no longer a cow in Alaska. In sections it is somewhat of a curiosity yet, for when the winter snows are 10 feet on the level, and hay retails as high as $600 a ton, few can afford to keep a "McKinley moose."—Los Angeles Times.

According to Dr. Wiley, mosquitoes are fond of whiskey and can get intoxicated. Of course we have all heard of mosquito bars.

A TRUE CAT STORY.

Is it the call of the wild that causes a cat with her first kittens to hide them away from the eyes of man? The actions of a young cat with her three little kittens, her first ones, by the way, has caused a great deal of discussion at police headquarters lately.

About ten days ago the kittens were born. At that time the young mother sought a drawer in the desk of the Gamewell operator, Maurice Walsh, which place she entered for the rear. That left her and her progeny entirely concealed.

Mrs. Kitty was discovered, however, and given into the care of Andy Bean, the one-armed negro, who cleans the courtroom. He made a comfortable bed in a box in the basement and moved the little family to his new home. Mrs. Kitty appeared very nervous, as many persons passed near where she and her kittens lay. She would look up at them as if to ask why they were there.

She stood the test for two days. Then the home was found deserted—the kittens had been moved. Where? No one knew. Mrs. Kitty was seen about the station, and though followed several times, she never would lead Andy to her new home.

On the night of July 3 Frank Scott, gas inspector, sought the negro nurse and said: "Andy, your cat and kittens are over in my office. You'd better move them tonight, as the hall is to be closed tomorrow and she can't get to them. She carried them all in my place and hid them behind a gas tester. I placed them in a box."

Andy went over and took Kitty, her family, new box home and all back to the basement of the station. Again Kitty looked nervously at the many people entering and leaving Police Court—they all had to pass near her home. Sunday morning, when all was quiet, she was caught in the act of trying to move her little family back to the Gamewell room, where they were born. In this she was frustrated.

Monday came and there was the biggest Police Court docket of the year. That was all Kitty could stand. Her home was very comfortable. She had a negro to answer her every beck and call, but the "street" she lived on must have been too noisy. How she did it no one will ever know, but she actually stole out her kittens, one by one, and moved them to a box in the dark vault in the office of James E. Vinell, Secretary of the Police Board, two floors higher up. The call of the wild had taken possession of her again. Mr. Vinell saw Mrs. Kitty make several trips to his vault, but was busy and did not notice that her family was within. That night he closed and locked the vault. Kitty was frantic. She moaned and wailed about the station all night and remained long outside the door of the Secretary's office, out of which she was also locked. Yesterday morning, however, when the office was opened Kitty was there. Then she ran to the vault and asked Mr. Vinell as plainly as a cat could to hurry and open it. When he did so the young mother jumped into the box and cared for her very hungry little ones.

The struggle to be natural, to revert back to the actions of cats before they were domesticated, was too great for Kitty, however. She gave up the right and one by one slowly removed her family to the noisy home in the basement near the Police Court. She is there now, looking hopefully at all passersby and apparently regarding them with suspicion. The call of the wild she may feel all day long, but she knows now, no doubt, that she can't gratify it.—Kansas City Journal.

Making Indian Arrowheads.

Ernest Bauman, of Berlin, Kent county, Mich., is said to have discovered how the Indians made arrowheads. This is the story: Many a time when his plow turned up an arrowhead, or some of the chips flaked off in the process of manufacture, he would sit down beside the plow and become absorbed in study of the problem. From the chips he learned more than from the heads themselves. He learned which way they came off the stone and then began to experiment to find the means employed to break them off. He tried as a hammer every material he could think of, and finally succeeded in chipping several flakes off with a piece of hard wood whittled to a point. With this encouragement he kept at it, and about a year ago succeeded in producing a perfect arrowhead. The news of the success of his experiments came to David W. Kendall, of Grand Rapids, who is an authority on geological and entomological subjects. He wrote the boy, and Bauman called at Kendall's residence and announced he would make an arrowhead for him then and there. He produced the only tool which, he said, was necessary, and to Mr. Kendall's surprise, it was nothing more than a small bit of wood whittled to a point. From another pocket he took a rough piece of flint and set to work. With a peculiar twisting motion of the wood—not hammering, but rather rubbing against the stone—he broke off handed to Mr. Kendall a perfect arrowhead.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Most people waste a lot of valuable time telling their imaginary troubles.
